6 Tips for your leash-reactive dog

1

Work with your dog to teach proper leash walking

Start in an environment with few distractions to show and pattern correct behaviour.

2

Never put your dog into forced interactions

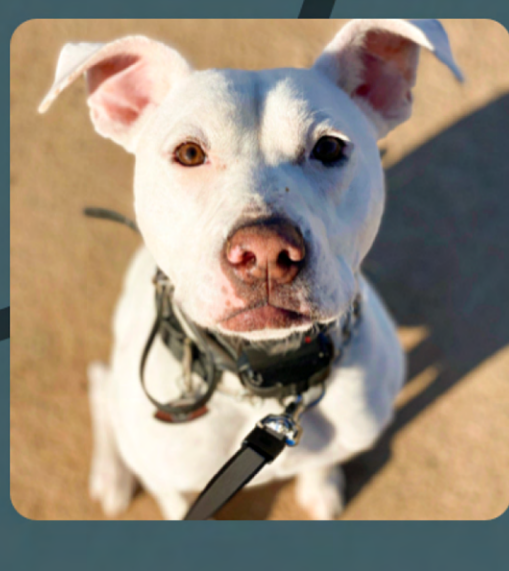

Pushing your dog to interact with other dogs will not help to fix leash reactivity.

3

Avoid pulling on the leash

If your dog is reacting, pulling back on the leash will only exacerbate the behaviour.

Story of the month

Remi

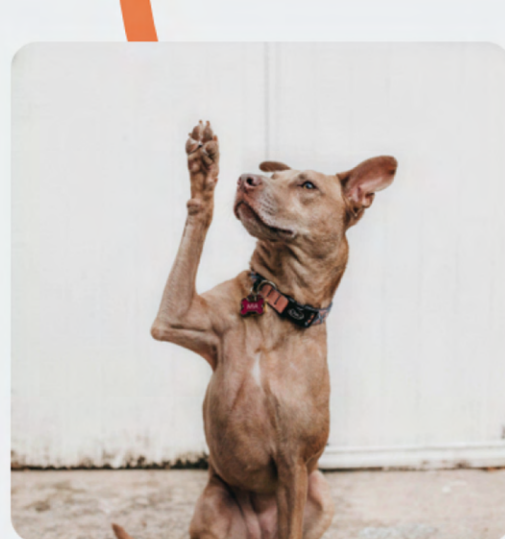

Remi's owner was told by other trainers that she was
"too difficult to work with" But is it really the case?

Check out our Instagram post and see how Remi is engaged and happy to be working! With proper balanced training, her reactivity toward other dogs is at a minimum, and she's making excellent strides with place command, muzzle conditioning and more.

Way to go girl!

Lindsey Sommer

"I've been training dogs for over 15 years. After volunteering at a dog shelter in college, I decided on a career helping dogs with training and behavioral needs. I'm fascinated with Belgian Malionis and I'm passionate about helping dogs and owners better understand each other to make life together more enjoyable."
