What are Classical & Operant Conditioning in dog training?

Classical conditioning and operant conditioning are methods of learning that professional dog trainers use to shape and modify behavior.

But what do “classical conditioning” and “operant conditioning” actually mean? How are the two methods applied in dog training? How do they differ from each other?

In our latest blog post, we’ve set out to answer those questions to help dog owners understand classical and operant conditioning and how both techniques impact how dogs learn.

Story of the month

Emmalani

Walking Emmalani on a leash used to be exhausting for her owners. She would pull, refuse to heel and her behavior would be unpredictable. They eventually stopped taking her on walks.

Now? Emmalani is calm, cool and collected.
